Cincinnati Christian University

- I. The Stone-Campbell Dialogue will continue the work for the next five years as described below.
- II. The trajectory for the next five years will take as a theme “God at Work in the Stone-Campbell Movement.”
 - A. Planning a series of gatherings to extend the work and discussion of the Dialogue and to broaden the community of dialogue.
 - 1) A larger gathering of “movers and shakers” representing a wide diversity of leadership in all the streams.
 - 2) A meeting of seminarians and seminary professors.
 - 3) A meeting of youth (high school students) from the three streams
 - B. Plugging into national meetings of each of the three streams—General Assembly, NACC, Lectureships, etc.
- III. Between March 31 and October 4, 2009, each member will seek to foster observances of the Great Communion in their own communities.
- IV. The next meeting will be November 1-3, 2009, in Lexington, KY.
- V. The agenda for the meeting in Lexington will include:
 - A. Analysis of the Great Communion and learnings from it.
 - B. Providing time for dialogue and fellowship (see V below) that would include a review of the original purpose statement.
 - C. Begin planning for the meetings of seminarians, the “larger gathering,” and plugging into the national gatherings of the streams.
- VI. Because several new people will be on the Dialogue, and to help us plan other meetings, we will ask them to respond to a set of questions:
 - A. Did you know about the Stone-Campbell Dialogue before being invited? What did you know?
 - B. How do you respond to the papers from March 2009 that reflected on the first decade of the Dialogue’s work?
